

Project Update: January 2004

Studies on small mammals in this area took place more than 30 years prior to this study. This one was a challenge because it had to show whether the species already cited as belonging to this study area were still present or not.