

Project Update: January 2008

January 6, 2008

In this project, local community members, young fisher-folk, traders, and youth, among others, will learn, directly, about the incredible diversity within the few remaining native mangrove habits in the Kaper Bay biome. Much of this knowledge has been lost over the past two generations.

