

Project Update: November 2013

Continuing influence of my Important Plant Areas project. One more paper is published and it is available at <http://savesteppe.org/ru/archives/10761> it is in Russian, its title is 'Steppes of Armenia and the Important Plant Areas project' and the paper contains information on the history of the IPA project in Armenia and its results with the reference to the Rufford Small Grants Foundation support.

Another news is that, following my visit to Kazakhstan in March 2013, where I reported on the RSG continuation grant results, a group of our colleagues from Kazakhstan (Institute of Botany of Almaty) visited us last week in order to establish links, for experience exchange and further collaboration, particularly on the Important Plant Areas project, which they started working on in Kazakhstan too.
