

Project Update: May 2012

In conjunction to “Save the Frogs” (<http://www.savethefrogs.com>) day on 28th April 2012, an international programme to highlight the threatened status of world’s amphibians around the world was held at Permai Rainforest Resort, Sarawak. The Bornean Frog Race 2012, the first of its kind was organized by Universiti Malaysia Sarawak and conceptualised by me together with my fellow colleagues for most aspects of the event. To instil awareness on frogs’ conservation, a talk entitled “Research and conservation of Ansonia latidisca, the Bornean Rainbow Toad, at Gunung Penrissen” was also given by me, highlighting my study on the natural history of this ‘lost’ toad. Threats to the continual survival of this species was also discussed in the talk.
