

Project Update: October 2013

The project has progressed well with our research and jungle patrols to find out about and protect the rainforest monkeys we work with. Now we are busy on the community involvement phase, and are sharing our knowledge and experience with children, students and adults alike

These photos show students from Cross River University of Technology learning about practical management at our Mangabey release site and schoolchildren visiting our Education Centre to learn of the threats to Nigeria's precious rainforest and unique primates as part of their schoolwork. These are the next generation upon who the future of our wildlife depend!

CRUTECH students practising forest management at CERCOPAN

Schools visit CERCOPAN to learn about protecting the rainforest and the primates that live in them