

Project Update: December 2003

I have only been able to make three long trips this year due to the problems in Madidi late this year. The unrest in La Paz and the long term road blocks kept me in the city for two months without being able to leave, and then I was unable to return to Madidi due to unrest in the Apolo region (WCS have not allowed any staff to return there this year). Because of this I have lost valuable time and this prompted me to visit the Carrasco National Park to substantiate rumours of a black woolly monkey there.
