

Project Update: January 2014

Time has been scarce to update you with news of our fieldwork in Cape Verde, with the Cape Verde warbler, but I can say that so far the work has been amazing. We have been able to sample a large number of birds from the Island of Santiago and are just starting in Fogo. But most importantly, we are creating a really good connection with the local ornithologists, managed to get a telescope for one of them (this had nothing to do with the warbler), and I have already taken 5 people with me to learn a bit about bird sampling.

I am very happy to be here and I feel that everybody who has been involved in this project so far is happy too. And all of us are learning a huge deal about this bird!
