

Project Update: February 2012

I am thrilled to tell you that I was chosen as one of forty leading wildlife conservationists of our time to be featured in the new book WILDLIFE HEROES. This new book combines unique real-life stories, stunning photographs, and fascinating animal information. The book is authored by Julie Scardina and Jeff Flocken, two leading conservationists in their own right, who have a combined fifty years of experience working with wildlife.

I'm honoured to be featured in this book and recognised for my work to help lions. However, the greatest reward for me is the attention being given to lions – and other species that are struggling to survive. It is only through increased awareness and understanding of these amazing creatures that we can make a difference in saving them.

In the book, celebrities such as actors Ted Danson and Stefanie Powers, Jack Hanna, author Kuki Gallmann, and Dr. Jane Goodall generously praise the work of all the heroes highlighted. To find out more about the book, you can go to www.WildlifeHeroes.org
