

Project Update: December 2014

As reported on August 2014, I am finalising the laboratory works and analysis. I am happy that all the laboratory analysis and reports are already done. With this report I attach two papers, one published on the Journal of Pharmacognosy and Phytochemistry and the other one accepted at European Journal of Medicinal Plants! I am processing the payment for the publication of this second paper.

I will soon start to disseminate findings of my research to communities surrounding Gombe National Park and starting planning to develop tree plant scheme of medicinal plants in schools, village land and public places. This will go hand in hand with conservation education to inform the values of medicinal plants and how can be used sustainably for the community benefit while conserving the resources, i.e. forests and its associated wildlife.
