

Project Update: June 2016

During the autumn period we continued our lecture series on further three places, where the visitors of all ages were represented. During every occasion of our activities we handed the promotional materials to every interested person.

In winter, after the evaluation of the received survey sheets, we began to make plans for the next breeding season, what is necessary for us to do. During this period, we also designed the outlook of the information boards.

In the colder winter and also in the warmer spring period, as the weather and the waterfront conditions allowed it, we performed the maintenance, refreshing critical colonies sites, thus making it suitable for the next breeding season.

Our project, surveys gained widespread notoriety and thanks to this, we received many interested inquiries. As soon the first birds arrived back in May 2016, we continued informative lectures on the terrain.

During the organised boat trips, many people have the ability to get acquainted with the life of these uniquely beautiful birds, with the environment which they live in, and also with the importance of their protection.
