

Project Updates: July 2016

The huge tree which we used for construction of the tree hut at the experimental paddy land was uprooted unfortunately due to heavy winds (right).

We observed two male elephants at one of the village tanks one evening. We believe that they were hiding in the village forest patches until dark. In the same day elephants came to the experimental paddy land at dawn and raided after breaking the private electric fence. On the other hand elephants still break the park electric fence at dawn to return the park and we are struggling to find their entering places to the village.

We could replace to blowout CFL bulbs - which was fixed with the effort of my first Rufford small grant - with the support of undergraduate students from the National University of Singapore who visited the village recently (left) and we thank the students for their contribution.
