

Project Update: April 2017

We collected the scats of dhole and information about distribution and habitat of dhole in the second season (winter season: January, February, and March). In this time we focused the conservation awareness programmes targeted at herders and local key informants. We educated them about the importance of biodiversity and we trained them to save their livestock from dhole but discouraged them from poaching this species. We collected valuable information related to threats to this species and major causes and situation of human-dhole conflict.

Left: Interaction with local herder. Right: Livestock grazing in the habitat of Dhole.

Left: Researchers are walking with livestock. Right: Herder targeted conservation awareness program.