

Project Update: October 2017

During this month we made an educational presentation using real organisms at the Creek Chino School. The children was very happy because they learned how these animals are important in their ecosystems; also we explained the colouring book through a real shark and a ray. Children learned the principal facts that affects this organisms around the world.

This activity was very grateful because the majority of these childrens' parents were fishermen, so they explained how this project help them to take care about their resource.

After the activity the children told us about how they learned through this project, when they received classes they used the mural to learn the importance of this organisms, also they used the colouring book like a reading book.

460 books was successfully delivered in Livingston community, 360 in the Creek chino school and 100 in Ines Alvarez School.
