

Project Update: June 2018

We recently uninstalled cameras in three nests and got a few thousand nice photos and videos. You can see some of them attached, as well as a photo of Roy Toft, a world class photographer, that came to see one of our nests. He decided to go for a big proposal to NatGeo as well as to include a photo-tour on harpy eagles in his courses portfolio.

Here goes a quite special prey, a baby peccary. Peccaries are highly aggressive social animals, quite a feat from an eagle to grab one of the young. See:

<https://www.youtube.com/watch?v=uHE9Eily5vc>

We are currently with 15 nests and a few rumours to confirm. All that wouldn't be possible without Rufford Foundation generous support.

Bushnell

 TROPHY CAM

62°F 16°C ●

01-19-2018 09:19:31

Bushnell

 TROPHY CA

73°F 22°C ◐

03-08-2018 17:17:49