

Project Update: June 2018

During May 2018, we conducted environmental education only with some fishermen. We did workshops with them talking about our preliminary results from last year, and our conservation initiative related to garbage management and the marine ecosystem protection. We also had a meeting with the local environmental corporation CORPOGUAJIRA, in which we could present our preliminary results, highlighting the importance of La Guajira for dolphins. They are the most important local environmental authority, and we established with them a good link to collaborate in the development of future management plans. The results of this meeting were positive, and it is possible that we can work together in the long-term on conservation of cetaceans, ecosystems, and local communities.

Left: Environmental education with fishermen. Right: Garbage on the beach

Left: Meeting with CORPOGUAJIRA. Right: Explaining our project to the local environmental corporation (CORPOGUAJIRA.)