

Project Update: March 2019

What a fantastic field season – we have completed our data collection phase on our farm study sites! We now have a huge amount of bat sound data to analyse and insects to identify. While out and about it has been refreshing to meet so many people interested in bats and what we do - some farms are even trialling bat boxes to encourage bats. This season we are particularly proud of our volunteer Bernard who has come on leaps and bounds with his field assistant training and has just begun a course in Agricultural Management. Luckily for us he will continue to volunteer in his spare time.

Bat boxes on a farm

Trainee investigating a bat roost in a house

Bats roosting in veranda blinds