

Project Update: April 2019

I have continued with researching and working on the publication. In May 2019, I will travel to San Cristobal to the laboratory of Diego Paéz and start analysing the tissue samples for the stable isotopes tests. There, Diego has some students that are also learning the importance of this technique and how to perform it. I will learn more about lab work and also help teach it to undergraduate students.