Project Update: January 2010

The website of Magoroto Mlinga project is finally online. It was quite a task to develop it as I had only very little previous experience of web design. However, with the help of the programme manual and plenty of time it is possible to learn! Any suggestions, especially concerning the contents, are welcome. Technical improvements can also be suggested, but it may take some time before I can work on them because, as I said, I'm a beginner.

Short project updates will be posted on the main page (Home) based on the progress reports I get from Mama Mshana.

View the site at www.mamcep.org